

I am against media consolidation, but I am writing in regards to Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to have its station air a documentary about Kerry before the election.

I have no problem with Sinclair airing this documentary. However, it should be seen as a free ad for Bush. Seen in this light, Sinclair should be required to provide similar time to the Kerry campaign to run ads. That time should be similar both in the number of viewers the ad will reach and in the total number of minutes on air. The time should also be prior to the election.

If this does not happen, I hope that Sinclair's licenses are revoked or that heavy fines are imposed.

Thank you.

Susan Misra